

MPs open up about abuse

DOZENS of MPs have revealed harrowing stories of abuse, harassment and being threatened with death and sexual violence in a TV documentary.

One of the 60 politicians, Labour's Naz Shah, told Channel 4's Dispatches she had to discuss with her children what would happen if she was killed.

The interviews for tonight's episode were conducted by MP Kim Leadbeater, whose sister Jo Cox was murdered in her constituency in 2016.

Ms Leadbeater said: "The impact of the constant threats and abuse on my colleagues is clear."
