

Staying In > TV

Catching a Killer: What to expect from C4's new documentary on the disappearance of Natalie Hemming

The show follows a local police service's efforts to trace the missing woman

AIMÉE GRANT CUMBERBATCH | 21 hours ago | 0 comments

Like Click to follow ES Entertainment

Investigating officers: the new C4 documentary follows Thames Valley Police as they investigate Natalia Hemming's disappearance and murder

From docu-drama The Trial, which saw a fictional murder case heard by a real court, to a documentary which follows police investigating the disappearance of Natalie Hemming, it's been a crime-filled few weeks for Channel 4.

Catching a Killer sees cameras track the efforts of Thames Valley Police as they hunt for missing Natalie Hemming who disappeared in May 2016. Here's everything you need to know:

What's it about?

Filmmaker Anna Hall takes us back to May 2016, following the Thames Valley Police in their search for missing Natalie Hemming.

The show guides us through the twists and turns of the case building up to the tragic conclusion - the discovery of Hemming's body.

With unprecedented access to the inner workings of the police service it's an illuminating, if tough-going look at how a missing person's case turned into a murder investigation.

Who is Natalie Hemming?

Natalie Hemming was a car salesperson and mum of three from Milton Keynes. Last year Hemming was reported missing leading to a massive police search which went on for three weeks before she was found beaten to death in a wooded area of Hertfordshire.

Hemming's ex-partner Paul was convicted of her murder and sentenced to a minimum term of 20-years in prison.

When's it on?

Catching a Killer will air on Channel 4 at 9pm tonight. ■

■ READ MORE

- Frank Skinner pays tribute to hero Muhammad Ali in new BBC documentary
- The Chillenden Murders: What you need to know about the new BBC show
- BBC's new revenge thriller Paula makes for unsettling viewing

More about: | Channel 4 | Catching a Killer | Thames Valley Police