

TV picks for Wednesday, Nov. 22

WATCH THIS:

NBA basketball, Warriors at Thunder (5 p.m., ESPN):

The Warriors again visit the city abandoned by Kevin Durant as they get their first taste of the new-look Thunder with Paul George and Carmelo Anthony flanking MVP Russell Westbrook. But Durant, who is nursing a sprained ankle, may not play.

“A Charlie Brown Thanksgiving” (8 p.m., ABC): The Peanuts gang returns in this perennial special.

Unfortunately, Charlie’s plans for a special dinner go awry when the caterers, Snoopy and Woodstock, prepare toast and popcorn as the main dish.

“SEAL Team” (9 p.m., CBS): In “The Exchange,” Jason and the SEAL Team have mixed feelings when they are tasked with bringing home an American soldier who was captured after deserting, in exchange for detainees in Gitmo.

“Property Brothers at Home: Drew’s Honeymoon

House” (9 p.m., HGTV): This new series has Drew and Jonathan Scott rushing to complete a massive renovation of the 1920s-era Los Angeles dwelling that Drew and fiancée Linda Phan call home.

“iHeartRadio Music Festival” (8 p.m., The CW): It’s Night 1 of the big concert event from Las Vegas. Hosted by Ryan Seacrest, the show features performances by Pink, Harry Styles, Coldplay, Chris Stapleton, The Weeknd and others.

“Frontline: Poor Kids” (10 p.m., PBS): The documentary-news series presents an indelible portrait of the realities of growing up poor in America, told by children in three families over the course of half a decade. It’s a new version of the Emmy-nominated 2012 documentary that explored the economic crisis through the eyes of children. This update revisits the kids at the heart of the film to see what their lives are like now, and offering a powerful, firsthand look at what poverty means to children and the country.